DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election of Species III with traverse along with Species I and II in the reply filed on 01/30/06 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement of between Species III with traverse along with Species I and II and Species IV, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

However, Applicant's election with traverse of Species III, claims 81, 86, and 90, in the reply filed on 01/30/06 is acknowledged.

I The traversal is on the ground(s) that dependent claim 85 belong in Species III. This is found persuasive because dependent claim 85 indeed belongs to Species III. Therefore, it will be examined along with Species III.

II The traversal is on the ground(s) that independent claim 81 is generic to all of the claims of Species I, II, and III (claims 78-79, 81-83, 85-88, and 90). This is found persuasive. Upon the allowance of generic claim 81, the non-elected claims 78-79, 82-83, and 87-88 will be considered for rejoinder. However, because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election requirement is made final.

Priority

Should applicant desire to obtain the benefit of foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d) prior to declaration of an interference, a translation of the foreign application should be submitted under 37 CFR 1.55 in reply to this action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 81, 85-86, and 90 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsuura et al. (5363117) in view of Byer et al. (5036220).

With respect to claims 81 and 85, Matsuura et al. show in Fig.4 a laser device, comprising:

at least one laser light source (30) including a semiconductor laser (laser diode);
a first optical system (4) for irradiating a spatial modulation element (7) (liquid crystal cell in column 4, line 56-57) with laser light emitted from the laser light source; and a second optical system (12) for irradiating a screen (9) with the light emitted from the spatial modulation element.

Matsuura et al. lack the laser light source further includes an optical wavelength conversion element in which periodic domain inverted structures are formed.

Art Unit: 2828

Byer et al. teach in Fig. 1 the laser light source includes an optical wavelength conversion (11) element in which periodic domain inverted structures are formed (column 5, lines 46-49).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide Matsuura et al. what is taught by Byer et al. to convert the laser source radiation frequency to the desired optical frequency (column 4, lines 1-3).

With respect to claim 86, Byer et al. disclose in fig. 1 an optical waveguide (17) for guiding the laser light from the semiconductor (column 4, lines 29-30).

With respect to claim 90, Matsuura et al. disclose the semiconductor laser is wavelength-locked (constant) (column 13, lines 24-25) (the claim recites the semiconductor laser is wavelength-locked and that means the semiconductor laser has a constant wavelength).
